The Douglass Global Leaders Program

FOCUS ON THE FUTURE

THE DOUGLASS GLOBAL LEADERS PROGRAM is designed to prepare women for leadership roles in a rapidly globalizing world. The Program will be tied to the living learning communities in the Global Village, and will be housed in the new residence hall in Jameson. Dean Litt and her team have determined that the Program will include:

- Community-based Service Learning with international populations
- International Service Learning
- Education and internships in international business
- Global environmental research and policy
- Study abroad
- Douglass-United Nations programs
- International Certificate

“I am extremely committed to Douglass Global Leaders Program,” Dean Litt told alumnae, donors and staff during a presentation of the case statement about the Program. “I believe it will be a cornerstone of students’ experience here at Douglass,” said Dean Litt.

Can One Building Have a Global Impact?

IT CAN AT DOUGLASS!

The new Living Learning Residence Hall envisioned for the Global Village on Jameson Campus will be the home of the Douglass Global Leaders Program. The state-of-the-art building will provide additional residential space for students who choose to live in one of the College’s themed living learning communities as well as provide classroom and assembly space, video conferencing and computer labs needed for all global programs.

The first new construction at Douglass in more than 30 years, the building will feature suite-style living, adding to the existing housing options and enhancing recruitment.

In order to make the Dean’s Global vision a reality, the Associate Alumnae of Douglass College seeks to raise $ 5 million for the project. The new Living-Learning residence hall is so important that Rutgers University will match the funds raised, thereby making the building a true public-private partnership. Thus far, more than $2.6 million has been raised—surpassing the half way mark toward a new global center for the very center of campus.
